"The Origins of Social Work Education in Victoria"

With Dr Jane Miller

Jane Miller had a varied social work career working in hospitals, in policy development and program management in the Victorian Public Service and as an equal opportunity conciliator.

She was head of Social Work at the RCH from 1993 to 2007. On retirement she completed a PhD at the University of Melbourne and last year Monash University Publishing published her book "For Social Betterment" based on her thesis. Her talk will focus on the people and organisations who founded social work education in Victoria in the late 1920s and early 1930s and will include discussion of the early social workers at RCH.

You are warmly invited to join us for lunch ($20/person) following the talk - RSVP by 14th March if joining us for lunch. Parking is available at the Mercure for $15 .
